

President's Message

On this very special occasion, De La Salle Araneta University joins learning institutions from all over the world in honoring our teachers who build the future by tirelessly molding the minds and shaping the lives of our young men and women. Happy World Teachers' Day to our modern heroes!

Teachers: Leading in Crisis, Reimagining the Future. This year's World Teachers' Day's theme underscores the crucial role that our teachers have played in ensuring that learning continues despite the overwhelming and unprecedented strain that the COVID-19 pandemic has placed on our education systems and learning institutions. Despite the insidious and near-paralyzing scale of this health crisis, our teachers have shown exceptional resilience: creating an atmosphere of safety and normalcy for students, even as they themselves must navigate and adjust to the many challenges brought on by this global health emergency. Without a doubt, this pandemic did not dampen or diminish the influence of our teachers; rather, it further highlighted their significance on our young people's everyday lives.

To the hardworking, creative, and passionate teachers, professors, and educators of De La Salle Araneta University, thank you for your unfaltering commitment, not only to the university's mission to "teach minds, touch hearts, and transform lives", but also to the continuing education of our young people to ensure that no child is left behind. Thank you for supporting our university in the rollout and implementation of its FARM of Learning Program. Thank you for your extraordinary efforts in realigning your methods and lessons to accommodate our remote learning program on such short notice. More importantly, thank you for inspiring our students to continue learning with openness, enthusiasm, and curiosity, especially in these uncertain and challenging times.

Happy World Teachers' Day!
